THE TRIBUNE.

The Fame and Glory of England Vindicated, Being an Answer to the "Glory and Shame of England." By Libertas. New-York and London, Wiley & Putnam.

This book will be far more popular across the water than here; yet we are sure that many of our countrymen who read the extraordinary work of Mr. Lester with regret and incredulity, will not unwillingly see its pretensions canvassed, its statements of matters of fact tested, and much of its literary quackery effectually exposed. The hasty half judgments which Mr. Lestor formed concerning things that came under his observation—the rashness and even effrontery with which he generalizes from isolated occurrences, and his wholesale borrowings from the writings of others, are shown up with no little severity. Each letter is taken up in order, and its statements and arguments discussed seriatim. The writer is evidently an Englishman, as may be judged from the zeal with which he espouses the vindication of that country from the aspersions of Mr Lester, as well as from his no less zealous assaults upon the United States. He points out many foul blots upon our national character, among which, of course, Slavery is not forgotten; and he shows how, by generalizing from single facts, as Mr. Lester has done, in repeated instances, he could give to the United States a blacker and more infamous character than belongs to any nation under the sun. He quotes Mr. Lester's account of Crockford's Gambling Establishment—and in parallel columns—precisely the same thing—words only being changed, from Grant's Metropolis; and in the same way he shows that Mr. Lester's account of a long conversation with Lord Byron, by an American gentleman, was taken bodily from 'Medwin's Conversations of Byron,' published in 1824.—'Chartist Speeches,' &c., &c., are cited as having furnished many other portions of the 'Glory and Shame of England.' Mr. 'Libertas' does not stop with the book under review. Mr. Hudson's Protective Speech, General Tallmadge's Address, Mr. Jay's Essay, The Tribune's advocacy of the Protective Tariff, our Systems of Education, &c., &c., are dragged into the controversy. The book is written with a good degree of ability, contains many important and wide-spread errors, and serves to caution us against receiving, without question, as true, indiscriminate slanders against foreign nations; but it is itself filled with illogical reasonings, and contains much that is untrue. Still we are glad it has been written, and trust it will be very generally read.

☞ The Lectures of the Rev. R. C. Shimeall, of the Prot. Episcopal Church, on the "Age of the World and Signs of the Times," delivered at the Apollo Rooms, Broadway, in December and January last, are now in course of publication by request, and will be ready for delivery in a few days. The subjects of Geology as connected with the Mosaic Cosmogony, Terrestrial Magnetism, Chronology of the Scriptures, and the Chronology of the Boston-renowned William Miller, which ends the world in 1843, have all been treated with due attention by the author.

ASSOCIATION;

Or, Principles of a True Organization of Society.

OUR EVILS ARE SOCIAL, NOT POLITICAL; AND A SOCIAL REFORM ONLY CAN ERADICATE THEM.

Festival in Honor of Fourier.

The Festival in honor of Fourier was numerously attended: the dining-hall of the President Hotel, one of the largest in the City, through which a double row of tables was set, was entirely filled. The warmest feeling of enthusiasm prevailed, and the spirit manifested on the occasion is a sufficient indication of the rapid progress of the noble Doctrine of Association, which offers practical measures for the moral, intellectual and physical Improvement of Man, and which gives Abundance and Happiness to All, without detracting from Any. We will state, for the information of our friends residing at a distance, that since we have obtained a column in the Tribune,—the Daily and Weekly circulation of which exceeds Twenty Thousand,—our Cause has progressed beyond our most sanguine expectations, and we feel confident that we shall soon reach almost every mind in the community, whose set prejudices do not render it hostile to all Reform and Progress.

The Divine Blessing was invoked by the Rev. Mr. Barrett; after which the President, Mr. Brisbane, announced the following regular Toasts:

1st. The Memory of CHARLES FOURIER.

2d. The Disciples of FOURIER throughout the earth who are laboring to realize a true Social Order.

3d. The moral, intellectual and physical elevation of the Human Race, and the cultivation and embellishment of the Globe.

4th. The Goodness and Dignity of Human Nature:—perverted and degraded in our false Societies, it will shine forth in all its pristine splendor in Association.

5th. The neglected Earth—our common Mother, from whom we draw our sustenance and material comforts; ravaged and devastated, covered with burning deserts, pestilential marshes and rude forests, she appeals to the Human Race for culture and improvement.

6th. The dignified and attractive Industry of Association; may it soon replace the repugnant, degrading and accurs'd drudgery of our false Societies.

7th. The practical realization of Christ's divine principles of universal fraternity, love and equality, and of truth and justice on the earth.

These Toasts were warmly received, and particularly the two last.

The President then called on Mr. F. W. Whitley, 1st Vice President, for a Toast, who gave the following, prefixed with a few remarks, which were excellent and warmly applauded:

The system of Association discovered by Chas. Fourier.—It is entitled to the candid consideration of every intelligent mind, because it proposes the application of scientific principles to every branch of art, agriculture and manufactures; justice in the division of its wealth, wisdom, concert and benevolence in the application of its resources to the elevation of the human race.

Horace Greeley was then called upon, and was greeted with a feeling which showed that they who love Truth, love the man that aids its cause. We will give a few of his remarks:

Mr. Greeley observed, that the remarks he should offer would be addressed rather to the few doubting than to the far larger portion of the company, who rejoiced in heartily believing the practicability of an Industrial Organization of Society. We should not incline to be impatient or angry with those who differ from us on so vast a subject if we considered how multifarious and how crude are the projects of Reform by which we are surrounded. The world is full of them.—Every third man you meet is a professed Reformer, and even the most conservative and radical-hating among us will wind up his tirades against other men's schemes of improvement by whispering in your private ear that he has some deeply cherished project, some pet contrivance for banishing evil and misery and reforming the world.

This fact, which may seem annoying or ludicrous at the first glance, is a truth of most cheering, gratifying import. It proves, first, the universal consciousness of the necessity of Reform; secondly, the increased, increasing sympathy of Man with the sufferings and woes of his Race; and, thirdly, the dissatisfaction of Man with his present condition and attainments—'a testimony of the Soul to a fairer possibility of Life.'

I am not, Mr. President, constitutionally sanguine with regard to projects of Reform; I am well aware that they have too often proved delusive and impracticable. I have inclined rather to distrust all vast and comprehensive plans of ameliorating the condition of our Race, and, while never blind or callous to the frightful mass of evils under which Humanity has so long groaned, I have doubted if they were not inseparable from our mortal condition, and irremediable by any direct agencies. I have felt and acknowledged the force of the argument which rigid Conservatism opposes to all projects of Reform—that the Good they promise is contingent and distant, while the Evil which is inseparable from their progress is positive and immediate.

I think this broad and general objection is fully obviated by the system of Association. This system requires no immediate sacrifice as a condition precedent of ultimate benefit. While it may well satisfy the most thorough Radical, it need not alarm the most timid Conservative. While it will ensure independence and comfort to the Poor, it increases rather than diminishes the wealth and enjoyments of the Rich. And this is a feature of the system which has won for it my sympathies, and enlisted in its behalf my earnest and hopeful exertions.

The world is at length learning that from strife and contention nothing can result but wretchedness and ruin. Through love, harmony, quiet thought, peaceful exertion and contented Industry must come the renovation of the world. As in the ancient fable, when the City arose majestically from the earth to the sound of ravishing melody, until it stood revealed in all its perfect and beautiful proportions, so must the amelioration of the Human Lot be effected.

I trust no lover of Mankind will be discouraged that the vast plans of Fourier are not instantly reduced to complete practical operation. All great truths advance slowly but surely to their ultimate dominion over the hearts and understandings of men. The settlement of North America, which has done so much for the Human Race, was not effected until after years of effort, and peril, and sacrifice, and disaster. At this moment there are more steadfast believers in Association than there were European believers in the existence of a Western Continent up to the hour that Columbus discovered it. Let us hope, then, and labor, and await the propitious hour. I offer you, in conclusion, the following sentiment:

'Peace on Earth and Good Will to all Men.'—The touchstone of Truth in all Systems, whether of Religion, Philosophy or practical Reform.

Mr. Brisbane here rose and delivered an Address upon 'The Destiny of Man.' We will perhaps give to-morrow the first part of his Discourse, as it embodies the views which are entertained by the advocates of Association on this subject. Mr. B. gave the following Toast:

The Attainment by the Human Race of their Destiny!

Mr. L. W. Ryckman, 2d Vice President, was then called upon: he spoke forcibly and in his accustomed warm and energetic manner, and in conclusion gave the following sentiment:

Capital, Skill and Labor.—The three great elements of human progress in Intelligence, Wealth and Happiness: up to the present time they have been engaged in hostile opposition, resulting in the neglect and devastation of the Globe, and the Poverty, Ignorance and Misery of Mankind. Association, based on Attractive Industry, is an equitable treaty of Peace and Alliance between them, which will secure to the Earth cultivation and embellishment, and to the Human Race the full developement, employment and enjoyment of all their faculties.

At this stage of the proceedings a note, sent from some Ladies, was handed to the President, which we give with the toasts enclosed.

Mr. President:—Sir—A few Ladies, sincere believers in the great principles discovered by Fourier, although debarred the pleasure of personally participating in this Festival to his memory, beg to be allowed to bid those engaged in the glorious Cause of Association, God speed, and unite with them in the following sentiments:

Fourier—Like the Sun which renders visible the beauties of the material World, his Genius has thrown its light upon the Heart of Man and revealed the Divine Harmonies implanted there by God.

To the generous efforts of those who have felt for and appreciated Woman, and are laboring to elevate her to a Sphere where the true and holy Impulses of her Heart can expand and act according to their Nature.

Some other Ladies sent their best wishes for the cause, accompanied by the following sentiments:

Attractive Industry—The Fairy that will change Ixion's Wheel to a Chariot of the Gods, and enable Sisyphus to play at marbles. L. M. C.

Woman—May Society soon cease to make hewers of wood and drawers of water of the angels it possesses unawares.

The following Volunteer Toasts were offered:

By Mr. O. S. Fowler.—The doctrines of Fourier and the principles of Phrenology—each harmonizing with the other—both twin sisters of the same parent, Nature.

By Mr. Hyatt.—Fourier, the modern Jove, from whose brain has sprung the first perfect Divinity of Liberty which the world has ever seen.

By Mr. Remington.—Attractive Industry, the Harmony of the Passions, and Attracions proportioned to Destinies—words of power to bid the jarring discords and wild uproars of our falsely-organized societies "stand ruled."
